Withdrawals, whether official or unofficial, partial or total, will impact you in several ways. This pamphlet outlines the areas to consider, in addition to your personal reasons, when deciding if a withdrawal is the best course of action.

Withdrawals might affect:
- Tuition and fees
- Academic standing
- Satisfactory completion rate
- Financial aid award
- Health insurance coverage
- Veteran benefits
- Length of time it will take you to complete your academic program.

Official Withdrawal Process

Students are responsible for withdrawing officially if they stop attending any or all classes. A grade of “F” will be assigned to any student who stops attending a course but does not officially withdraw.

Partial Withdrawal
To withdraw from an individual class and remain enrolled in other classes, you can complete the course withdrawal form available at the Enrollment Center. Note that a partial withdrawal does not require that you repay financial aid, so long as you receive a passing grade in at least one other class for the semester. This may be a better option than a total withdrawal since there is no financial penalty.

Total Withdrawal
If you plan to withdraw from all classes, it is recommended that you arrange an exit interview with a counselor. Contact the Advisement and Counseling Services Office or the Enrollment Center.

Re-Admission
An admissions application is needed if you have not attended BCC for a period of time.

- If you are in good standing and return after three semesters of no academic progress, you will remain in your program of study and re-admission is not required. Exception: Students in competitive programs of study must reapply after any break in attendance.
- If you return after four semesters of no academic progress, you must reapply through the Admissions Office.

Impact on Financial Aid Award

Total Withdrawal
For financial aid purposes, the withdrawal date is the official withdrawal date or 50 percent of the semester if no official withdrawal date exists. Students enrolled in modules who do not successfully complete at least one class in each module are also considered to have withdrawn.

- Official withdrawal within the drop period (the first two weeks of the traditional semester) will result in cancellation of all financial aid. Tuition and fee charges will be cancelled, except $37. You will be responsible for all book advance charges.
- Withdrawal after the drop period and up through the 60 percent point of the semester will result in financial aid reduction based on the percentage of time you attended the semester. You will be responsible for repaying a portion of the financial aid. For example, if you withdraw at the 42 percent point of the semester, the financial aid will be reduced to 42 percent of the original award.
- Official withdrawal after the 60 percent point will result in no repayment of financial aid funds already disbursed.

Unofficial withdrawals occur when only non-passing grades are received. Financial aid is reduced using the 50 percent point of the semester. For example, if you receive any combination of W, U, F, L, N grades, your award will be reduced to 50 percent or the withdrawal date percentage, whichever is later, and you will need to repay a portion of financial aid.

Impact on Charges and Academic Standing

Tuition and Fee Charges
- Official withdrawal during the first two weeks of class, will result in a 100 percent refund of tuition and fees, less the $37 non-refundable fee.
- Official withdrawal during the third week of class will result in a 50 percent refund of tuition and fee charges, less the $37 non-refundable fee.
- Official withdrawal after the third week will result in no repayment of financial aid funds already disbursed.
- Unofficial withdrawals occur when only non-passing grades are received. Financial aid is reduced using the 50 percent point of the semester. For example, if you receive any combination of W, U, F, L, N grades, your award will be reduced to 50 percent or the withdrawal date percentage, whichever is later, and you will need to repay a portion of financial aid.
